

Managing Your Online Presence

Postdoctoral Scholars and Graduate Students are invited to meet with Dr. Amanda Swain and Dr. Priya Ganguli who will discuss their strategies used to design their professional websites. Participants will be encouraged to share their online management strategies; we will also review the wide variety of online tools. This is a relatively new arena for everyone—so expect a rich discussion of choices, benefits and risks.

Tuesday, November 15 – 3:30-5:00 pm

Humanities Gateway 1010

Light Refreshments will be provided

Amanda Swain, PhD

Executive Director, Humanities Commons, UCI

<http://sites.uci.edu/ajswain/>

Dr. Amanda Swain is Executive Director of the UCI Humanities Commons with a research focus on Russian & Eastern European history. She is an experienced researcher, educator and program developer in academic and public environments. Dr. Swain has organized multi-disciplinary collaborations and exhibitions and is a writer and interviewer for academic and public audiences, ranging from scholarly articles to blog posts and podcasts. Dr. Swain attended a DH Professionalization course at the Digital Humanities Summer Institute (2015) and managing her own online presence is a priority, as well as a creative and fun endeavor.

Priya Ganguli, PhD

Postdoctoral Scholar, Department of Earth Systems Science, UCI

<http://www.priyaganguli.com>

Dr. Priya Ganguli is NSF Postdoctoral Fellow affiliated with the University of California (UC) Irvine (Mackey Lab) and UC Santa Cruz (Lamborg Lab) where she studies the transport and fate of mercury in the environment. Prior to arriving at UCI, Dr. Ganguli studied mercury transport and biogeochemical cycling in saltmarsh systems at Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution. She has been involved in several multidisciplinary projects and her research campaigns are designed to provide diverse opportunities for student involvement. Her personal website describes her projects and passions—and exudes enthusiasm for science, science education and environmental stewardship.
